ACS Named Top Learning Provider by HRO Today

DALLAS, TEXAS: February 21, 2008 – Affiliated Computer Services, Inc. (ACS) announced today that it has been named to HRO Today magazine’s “Baker's Dozen” list of top providers of learning and development services within the human resource outsourcing (HRO) industry. ACS provided learning and development services to more than 3 million client employees in 2007. It is the third year in a row the company has been named to the magazine’s list.

ACS was chosen from an initial field of more than two dozen training and development providers that integrate learning with talent management to support broader human capital and operations strategies. Recipients were asked to supply key data and facts about the services they offered, including their largest clients, annual revenues for training and development services, and, most importantly, how many outside employees the company trained in 2007. Some of those ranked are purely learning providers, while others, including ACS, offer end-to-end learning process outsourcing (LPO) services in concert with a full range of HRO solutions.

“We are honored to be included in the Baker’s Dozen for the third consecutive year,” said Ann Vezina, group president of ACS Commercial Solutions. “It speaks highly of our ability to provide flexible, reliable learning and talent management services to our clients and strengthens our position as leaders and innovators in the HRO sector.

“The fact that we’re included on this list, and that we and one of our clients — Toyota Financial Services — are featured in the cover story of this month’s HRO Today, draws attention to the depth and breadth of our HRO and LPO capabilities and to the quality of our people who work hard on behalf of our many clients,” Vezina said.

ACS provides a broad range of HRO and learning outsourcing services that help its diverse, global clients execute business strategies, drive performance, increase proficiency, and achieve growth. Through its LPO service, ACS supports approximately 3 million people in 20 languages in more than 80 countries. The global LPO market is estimated to be $60 billion.

The company's LPO solutions leverage powerful processes and technologies to deliver services from global delivery centers in the Americas, Europe, and Asia Pacific. ACS' learning outsourcing services span the entire learning life cycle from talent management and learning strategy to curriculum design and development, including a world-class hosted learning management system and related managed administration, learner care, and support services.
